ST. LOUISIAN FIRED ON IN DETROIT; INQUIRY ORDERED

Investigation of Arrest by Immigration Officials of L. D. Byrne on Return From Canada Made.

WAS A MEMBER OF GOLFING PARTY

Says He Started to Drive Away After He Thought Inspectors Had Finished Questioning Him.

Local to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 12.—An investigation is being made of the circumstances under which L. D. Byrne, vice president of the St. Louis Varnish, Enamel and Paint Co., was fired upon five times at his lodgings of immigration authorities here, Monday night.

Byrne was a member of a party that made a golfing trip to Windsor, Ontario. Following over the Windsor Ferry shortly before midnight in an automobile, the party was halted at the foot of Woodward avenue, Detroit, by immigration inspectors and Byrne was questioned for a half hour regarding qualifications for entering the United States.

At the end of that time, Byrne says, he understood the inspectors were through with him and he started driving up Woodward avenue. Inspector Claude Wilson ran out of his office and shouted to Patrolman Archie Watson to stop Byrne's car. Byrne asserts he heard in order to stop and continued on his way. Watson fired five shots at the automobile, none striking it. Byrne heard the shots and stopped.

Watson and Wilson placed Byrne under arrest, but he was released on recognition to appear today for further questioning. The officers said they might charge him with resisting an officer. Byrne insisted the shooting was uncalled for as he understood he had been questioned by the inspectors.

Byrne was the guest here of Harry C. Holliday, Detroit representative of the St. Louis company. Holliday, Byrne and another man and a woman were in the golfing party and were in the car when it was stopped upon.

HIVE IN FAMILY OF SIX DIE OR ARE HURT IN TWO WEEKS Mother Expires, Three Children Are Hit by Truck and Father Severed Artery.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 12.—Death, which in two weeks has been reaped by half the family of Peter Hallieck, 22 years old, claimed two of its victims late yesterday and now threatens to leave but one of the recent family of six.

Mrs. Hallieck died two weeks ago. Last night, Hallieck, who has been with father and mother to the four children, sent three of them to a store for supplies for the evening meal. A crash a moment later sent him to the window and he lay on the bodies of his daughter, Florence, 7 years old, and his son, Joseph, 5 years old, beneath the wheels of a truck. A daughter, Helen, 6 years old, lay nearby badly injured.

The father, going to the scene, crept through a glass door, seeing an artery in his arm but did not pause until he had been badlyakened by loss of blood. Hallieck and his daughter Helen are in a serious condition. A third daughter at home at the time of the accident is the only unscathed member of the family.

Police are holding Fred Bookner, garage driver of the truck.

AMUNDSEN'S SHIP, ICE-BOUND ALL WINTER, FREES HERSELF

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 12.—The steamer Maudie, exploration ship of Capt. Roald Amundsen, bound in the ice through last winter in the Arctic Ocean north of Siberia, has freed herself and set out for Nome, Alaska.

Police are holding Fred Bookner, garage driver of the truck.

DARROW SAYS JUDGE PLAYED POLITICS IN SCOPES TRIAL

Declares Raulston, Candidate for Re-Election, Sat on Platform at Bryan Meeting Before Case Was Ended.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—Clarence Darrow, defense attorney in the Scopes evolution trial, charges that Judge Raulston, who presided at the trial, used the case to further his political ambitions.

Darrow, who is in Greeley, Colo., made his charges in a telegram to the Chicago Daily News in answer to criticism of Darrow's conduct at the trial voiced by Judge Raulston in an address here last Sunday at a memorial meeting for William Jennings Bryan.

Judge Raulston, in his address, referred particularly to citing Darrow for contempt and said that Bryan asked that leniency be shown his adversary.

Darrow's telegram to the News follows:

"Judge Raulston was elected on a fluke and is now campaigning for re-election this fall. The trial was part of his campaign. He called the grand jury and asked them to indict Scopes in a hurry so that the case could be tried in his district.

The indictment was illegal, as it was brought too soon after convening of a special grand jury, so the Judge had him reindicted a month later, on the day of the trial. "On Sunday, three days before the case was closed, Mr. Bryan spoke twice in Dayton. Raulston was present at both meetings and sat on the platform at one. He paraded his fundamentalism all through the trial and has given the people of Chicago a chance to see what kind of a trial could have been held before him."

"It was perfectly proper to call Mr. Bryan, a recognized expert on the Bible, to testify as to the meaning of the story of creation. The questions asked him were perfectly civil, but when the examination had only commenced, the Judge took Mr. Bryan off the stand without any motion being made in court to that effect."

"The Judge may be glad he has a limited education. One cannot always avoid being ignorant, but few boast of it."

"The incident citing me for contempt is absurd. I did feel a contempt for his unfairness. I did say it as often happens by law in court. I did apologize as I should have done. This constantly happens in court and the Judge knows it, although it never happened to me before."

FRENCH WILL NOT APPROVE $30,000 NIGHT AND DAY FEE

Finance Commissioner Will Return Bill of Mayor, Case and Francis to Circuit Court.

NO RECOMMENDATION TO BE MADE IN CASE

Special Attorneys Already Have Received Similar Amount From Assets of Looted Bank.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 12.—State Finance Commissioner French will not approve the $30,000 additional fee sought by special attorneys employed in the liquidation of the looted Night and Day Bank of St. Louis, and will return the bill for fees to the attorneys to be submitted by them to the Circuit Court, without any recommendation from French.

The attorneys, who already have received $30,000 in fees from assets of the bank, are Mayor Victor J. Miller and Clarence Case, of the law firm of Case & Miller, and Thomas E. Francis, all of St. Louis.

While the attorneys are asking for another $30,000, the last report received by the Finance Department on liquidation of the bank showed only $23,108 in cash was on hand, and $461,262 in accounts still were uncollected.

Named by Millsbaugh.

Special attorneys for the liquidation were employed by former Finance Commissioner Frank C. Millsbaugh, who was removed last March by Gov. Baker, pending a grand jury investigation of his official conduct, and who later was indicted for alleged complicity in wrecking of the Citizens' Trust Co. of Gorin, Mo. The attorneys have continued in the liquidation since Millsbaugh was appointed.

Six of 20 St. Louisans whose paroles from the Boonville Reformatory have been revoked, were taken back to the reformatory today by two officials of the institution and a city detective. Six others are in jail here, awaiting trial for murder, one is in jail on a robbery charge, one is in city hospital, one in the workhouse and five remain to be apprehended.

Those taken to Boonville today, who were handcuffed together in pairs, are: Ben Grotgeger, 19 years old, of 2514 South Third street, paroled after serving 11 months of a two-year sentence for breaking and entering; those arrested at his home early today: William Dobel, 23, of 3139 North Thirteenth street, arrested on street last night; Joseph R. EXTENSION TO JOIN
EAST SIDE TERMINAL

Granite City to Mitchell Line to Connect System With All Railroads in E. St. Louis.

Completion of a four-mile extension of the Alton & Southern Railroad about Oct. 1 will give the East Side terminal system connections with every railroad on the east side of the Mississippi.

The new single track, which runs from Granite City to Mitchell, will establish connections at Mitchell with the Big Four, Chicago & Eastern Illinois, Chicago & Alton and Wabash railroads.

Construction work was begun about July 1. The northern end remains to be completed, with an extensive fill across Long Lake. Leaving Granite City, the extension parallels the Litchfield & Madison Railroad for about a mile and a half, then veers off, but remains in sight of the routes of the railroads with which it will connect—the Alton trolley line and the Alton-Edwardsville highway.

Extension Cost $500,000.

The extension, costing about $500,000, to meet this expense, the Alton & Southern yesterday applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington for permission to sell $316,200 in new capital stock.

The Terminal Railroad has a complete system of connections on the East Side, as on the St. Louis side. However, on the Missouri side there is virtually no competition. The trunk lines on both sides own the Terminal.

We are in active competition with the Terminal Railroad for intermediate business; that is, transfer of freight cars between roads," said Thomas Pindell, general manager of the Alton & Southern today. "We are gaining business on the basis of service, rates being the same. Last year we handled about 110,000 loaded cars. Empty units usually amount to about one-third of the number of loaded cars. We hope this year's business will be considerably larger, and, with the new connections, it is likely our large yards at the eastern end of the municipal bridge will be enlarged.

Unloading Facilities at Dock.

The Alton & Southern has its southern extremity at the Fortermin, a dock on the river about mid-way between the two main streets. This dock is used for unloading bauxite for the Aluminum Ore Co., sulphur for the Monsanto Chemical Co., coal and other commodities coming upstream on the barge line. The Alton & Southern, which is 12 years old, has about 16 miles of line now, running generally northwestward and crossing State street, East St. Louis, at Forty-second street.

Alleged Damage Suit Faker Held.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 12.—Evan Banefchukoff, alleged to have earned a livelihood for several years by filing damage claims against various railroads and life insurance companies for injuries and disabilities, was arrested here yesterday on a charge of operating a confidence game, on complaint of the elevated lines that he had defrauded them out of $50 in settlement of a fake injury.

ARMY ENGINEERS APPROVE CHICAGO SANITARY PROJECT
Government Solution of the Lake Level Controversy Anticipated.

CHICAGO, AUG. 12.—Army engineers have approved, with slight technical modifications, elaborate plans of the Sanitary District of Chicago for the construction of compensating works and sewage disposal plants designed to bring about a permanent solution of the lake level controversy.

Gen. Rufus W. Putnam, district engineer in charge of the government's interest, said yesterday the execution of the sanitary district's plan, which involves an outlay of approximately $20,000,000, promised all parties in the controversy. Lake shipping interests were the principal claimants against the district's withdrawal of upwards of 10,000 cubic feet of water a second from Lake Michigan for Chicago's sewage system.

The heavy drainage had reduced the level of the Great Lakes between five and seven inches with consequent interference with navigation. The Supreme Court upheld the view of army engineers that the Chicago withdrawals impaired navigation, and reduced the annual average withdrawal to 8500 cubic feet a second pending completion of the three-year construction program just approved.

NEW RATE BASIS ORDERED FOR WEST VIRGINIA COAL

I.C.C. However, Declines to Direct General Cut in Anthracite.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—Railroads serving West Virginia smokeless coal districts have ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission today to lay down a new basis of rates to New England and the North Atlantic seaboard. The commission refused to order general reductions on anthracite and sensible substitutes for anthracite.

Investigation showed the com-mision said, that the marketing of West Virginia smokeless fuel as a substitute for anthracite was restricted by a lack of proper joint rates. The railroads were notified to remedy the deficiency by Oct. 15.

A reduction affecting all North Carolina points which now pay an average of $7.06 per ton in freight on prepared anthracite was ordered. The new rate will be $5.75 per ton from Pennsylvania, effective within 90 days. A study of the carried earnings in the eastern territory, particularly in New England, indicated to the commission that the carriers would be unable to ab-serve a reduction of 10 per cent in rates on anthracite.

POLICE REPRIMAND FOR RAIDS ON HOMES

Judge Gayer Dismisses Two Cases in Which Liquor Possession Was Charged.

On learning that raids had been made by police on two private residences without search warrants, to seize liquor, Judge Gayer in Court of Criminal Correction today dismissed the cases and reprimanded the police.

"I hope the police will not continue to waste their time and mine," Judge Gayer said. "If all the residences in the city were hooch joints, as the police call them, it would not be justifiable to raid them without search warrants, as such raids violate the law. When it is shown the raids were made without warrants under the law, I cannot do anything but dismiss the cases."

"If a change is wanted, the law must be changed."

The cases dismissed were those in which Charles Barsett, 3222-Belt avenue, was charged with possession in his home of 14 cases of beer, July 25, and Robert Sullivan, 3033 North Broadway, and John Davis, 4502 Harris avenue, were charged with possession of four cases of beer and a quart of whisky in Sullivan's home, July 18. The cases came to Judge Gayer on change of venue from Judge Calvin Miller's division.

Ford Not Seeking Hudson Motor Co. (Associated Press)

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 12.—Formal denial of recurring reports that the Ford Motor Co. was seeking control of the Hudson Motor Car Co. was made here today by Edsel B. Ford, president of the Ford Co. Ford's statement read: "There is not now and never has been any foundation for the rumor that the Ford Motor Co. has acquired or is seeking control of the Hudson Motor Car Co. This rumor has persisted until in some quarters sheer repetition has given it a status of fact. For this reason we now make formal denial and state that the rumor in all its form is unfounded."

"I could not work at all and had to lie to my bed with a high fever due to intestinal indigestion. Gases in my stomach and pain were on both sides. I had spent my last cent for doctors and medicine, which gave me no relief. I was in despair. A lode brother gave me a bottle of May's Wonderful Remedy, and this medicine I am now in the best of health. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and relieves the stomach, liver and intestines practically including appendicitis. 200 DRY AGENTS
RAID NEW ORLEANS

Purpose of Campaign Is to Stop Liquor Flow in "Worst Wet Spot."

By the Associated Press.
NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 12.—With dissolution of the "inner circle" of New Orleans bootleggers as the signal, the largest army of dry agents ever assembled here yesterday seized liquor valued at more than $1,000,000 and arrested 30 alleged wholesale dealers in whisky in and near New Orleans today.

Acting under direction of E. C. Yellowley, chief of Federal prohibition agents, approximately 200 raiders began operations.

The raid extended from New Orleans to Biloxi, Miss., led by A. R. Harris, divisional chief, a squad seized the plant and property of the Union Beverage in this city, where a quantity of beer is reported to have been found. The Union plant, Harris said, has been the principal source of supply of the "real beer" that has been sold in New Orleans and adjacent towns.

Resorts in St. Bernard parish, immediately south of New Orleans and frequently referred to as the "bootlegger's haven," were raided. Near Bay St. Louis, Miss., 2,800 cases of whisky and alcohol were taken from a sloop owned by Joseph Ory, who was arrested.

Accompanying Yellowley were Assistant Attorney-General Sager and W. B. Andrew, a solicitor of the prohibition enforcement division.

More than 1,000 cases of liquor were held under guard at the Federal Building here last night.

"New Orleans is the worst wet spot in the country," said Yellowley, "and Detroit comes next. We are going to try to stop the flow of liquor into the United States through New Orleans within 30 days."

"We want to bottle up this port, and if it can be done we'll do it.

Liquor firms operating from Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City and other cities of the Mississippi Valley, as well, with their connections here form a formidable enemy to prohibition, are the objectives of this attack."

2 Arrested in Fort Wayne Liquor Raids.

By the Associated Press.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Aug. 12.—Thirty prohibition agents working under the direction of T. E. Howard, assistant divisional chief of the Chicago office, swooped down on the city today and arrested 21 proprietors of soft drink parlors.

Loses Four Toes in Fall.

William Poland, 52 years old, of 1113 North Taylor avenue, a foreman of the Laclede Gas Light Co., suffered the loss of four toes of his right foot and a fracture of the left arm when he fell 18 feet to the ground while working on a transformer on Dock street, east of Ferry street, at 6 p. m. yesterday. His fall dislodged the iron transformer cover and it fell on his foot. At the time of the accident he was repairing damage done by a heavy rain.

THREE GENERA-TIONS PRAISE
HERB JUICE

Chas. Russell, Children and Grandchildren Say It Is the Greatest Medicine of All Time.

"I felt it my duty to drop in and tell you that my whole family, even my grandchildren have been benefited more by your wonderful remedy, Herb Juice, than by any other medicine we have ever used," said Mr. Chas. Russell, R. F. D. No. 4, Mansfield, Mo., when he called to see the Herb Juice man recently.

"I have suffered for years," continued Mr. Russell, "with constipation, indigestion, gastritis and liver trouble. Had a very bad salivary complexion, a cause of course, from my liver. For years I have been unable to eat hardly anything without suffering for hours afterward from indigestion and keen cutting pains around my heart. I have a tight, aching feeling. I have an aching, everything imaginable for this condition. Everything that anyone would recommend I could read of, tried, but without any results whatever.

After reading so much about your Herb Juice, I finally made up my mind to try it. I would try anything to make one more trial. So I bought a bottle and much to my surprise it did me more good than any doctor I had ever seen. The fact is it did me so much good that I started my whole family taking it. My grandchildren, and we all think the Herb Juice is a wonder worker.

For myself, I am never troubled with constipation, I can eat most anything I want and such as I desire, digest it properly and never suffer any more from those sharp, cutting pains around my heart, and I feel and look better that I have in years."

"As far back as I can remember there are three generations taking our Herb Juice in our community.

I get a great pleasure in recommending it to everyone we know."

Endroits are now calling daily to see the Herb Juice Man, who has established headquarters at

Judge & Dolph Drug Co., 514 Washington Av., giving statements for publication and praising Herb

Juice that their friends may be inclined to try the great remedy which is relieving so many suffers in St. Louis.

METAL THIN AS MILLIONTH
PART OF A CENTIMETER

German Physicist Claims to Have Discovered Process Making
Gold Transparent

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Aug. 12.—Dr. Karl

Mueller of the Physical Research Bureau, claims to have discovered a process whereby it is possible to reduce metal foil to the thinness of one-millionth part of a centimeter, while retaining its elasticity. The process, as explained by Dr. Mueller, can be applied to all kinds of metal, including gold, rendering them transparent.

The discovery is regarded as most important and Dr. Mueller has received many applications from abroad for specimens of his atomic metal structure. Dr. Mueller's discovery is hailed here as a great benefit to the telephone, radio and musical industries.

The foils produced by the new process are reported to be as transparent as glass used by oculists, easily permitting a study of the atomic structure of precious metals.

Charlie Chaplin Is Indisposed.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—Charles

He had been ordered to stay in his room at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel at least until Saturday. A string of social engagements have been canceled, including a dinner, which was to have been given in his honor tonight by Conde Nast. The dinner has been postponed until next week.

Bootlegger Drowned in Flight.

GERMAN PROFESSOR AND JANITOR SLAIN

Police Question Savant's Wife, a Reclaimed Woman, but Fail to Solve Crime.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.
 Copyright, 1928, by the Press and Printer Publishers Co. (New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

BERLIN, Aug. 12.—One of the most fascinating of European murder mysteries is puzzling the police of Breslau. The two chief characters are a noted savant and a woman of ill repute whom he reformed and married.

Prof. Felix Rosen, naturalist of the University of Breslau, was found dead in his home with a bullet through his heart. At the same time a shoemaker, who was janitor in the house, was killed by a blow on the head with a hammer.

The police questioned a woman who for 22 years was known as the Professor's wife. She professed complete ignorance. She said intruders had entered the house, she had fainted and remembered nothing.

Records disclosed the naturalist's wife had been registered with the police seven years after the scholar met her. He first made her his housekeeper. After a daughter was born to them they were married. The daughter recently married a prosperous architect in Breslau.

The daughter and friends of the Rosen family support the wife stanchly. They all agreed that, despite her past, she had made an excellent wife. The police confess themselves baffled.

Although they have not yet found the revolver with which the fatal bullet was fired, they have established that the hammer which killed the shoemaker belonged to the Rosen household. In addition, they have found a black silk mask made of a stocking, supposedly the property of Mrs. Rosen. Mrs. Rosen is in prison.

PART TWO.

DOCTORS OPPOSE
CHANGE IN HEADS OF HEALTH BOARD

Physicians Believe Drs. North and Stewart Can Do Big Work by Remaining in Positions.

Since Gov. Baker's "final" refusal to demand the resignation of Dr. Carter F. Enloe from the State Board of Health, many persons have asked why Dr. Emmett P. North, president of the Board, and Dr. James Stewart, secretary, have not carried out their threat to resign from the Board.

Physicians close to the Board's affairs take the view that, in threatening to resign their places since Enloe were removed, Drs. North and Stewart made an error in judgment. But it would be a worse error in judgment, these physicians say, for the two to carry out their threat.

If Drs. North and Stewart were to resign, the general belief is that the four other members of the board, aside from Dr. Enloe, would also resign. Dr. Enloe, as the remaining member of the Board, and as the close friend and adviser of the Governor, would be expected to exert an influence in the selection of the new board.

Horton Trial Set for Sept. 17.

One of the important matters to come before the Board soon is the trial of Dr. R. B. Horton of Purdy, set for Sept. 17. Dr. Horton is charged with having misrepresented his educational qualifications before taking the Board's examination, which he passed in 1922. Dr. Horton, it has been learned since the citation against him was issued, accepted money from applicants for letters at more recent examinations, for his supposed "influence." Three such applicants paid him $100.

Physicians familiar with the Board's work believe that the Horton trial will be vigorously handled and may lead to further developments, if the present personnel of the board is maintained.

Continuation of the inquiry being made by Dr. F. C. Waite of Cleveland into the work of the State health authorities might be encouraged by a change in the Board's personnel. The present board, working with the State Dental Association, of which Dr. North is also head, has backed out in its attack on medical colleges which do not meet the standards of the association.

So long as Dr. North and his associates remain on the board, they can control it. If they were to resign, the responsibility for the board's future policy would be upon Gov. Baker.

The storm continued to the neighborhoods of Hamburg, Bremen and Lubeck, causing many property losses. Two persons were killed at Nauenfeld by flying tiles from roofs, but thus far no other deaths are reported from Germany, although several hundred persons were injured by falling debris. The storm in Holland, now number 400 and the homeless more than 2000. Heavy damage is reported from the towns of Diadem, Dordt, Oldenzaal, Hengelo, Zelzheim, Zwolle and Hengelo. Relief vehicles are having a hard time reaching the sufferers, as the roads are blocked with fallen trees and debris.

TORNADO DAMAGE IN EUROPE
2000 Homeless in Holland; Storm Reaches Germany.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Aug. 12.—The tornado which swept through Eastern Holland Monday night with the loss of 12 lives and the destruction of several towns continued into Northern Germany yesterday. Meager reports indicate further destruction was wrought to villages and farms in this sparsely populated district. Uetersen, 15 miles northwest of Altona, in Schleswig-Holstein, is reported to have been almost completely demolished.

For Good of the Profession.

"But," a physician familiar with the situation commented, "it would be little satisfaction to the board members to be able merely to place the responsibility somewhere else, if they had to see their work of ours destroyed. They had to choose between being consistent with the letter of their declaration to the Governor, and being persistent in their campaign for keeping up professional standards. They chose the latter."

Gov. Baker's latest utterance on the subject was, when he was asked whether he had received the nomination of any of the board, "No, but if any of them wants to nominate me, I won't get down on my knees to ask him not to."

WORLD CONFERENCE PLANS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—Twenty-four nations have announced that they will send delegations to the conference of the International Union which will hold its meetings in the hall of the House of Representatives here Sept. 1 to 7.

Wright, Assistant Secretary of State, it was announced, will be chairman of the budget committee. William McNeil, chief of the Bureau of accounts of the State Department, will be disbursing officer. Representative Burton stated that he had found much interest among the European officials in regard to the coming conference. The development of international law is one of the subjects to be discussed.

U. S. TO APPEAL OIL CASE
Dismissal of Suit Over California Naval Reserve Lease Opposed.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—The Department of Justice announced yesterday that an appeal would be taken from the decision of the Federal Court for Southern California dismissing the Government's suit to cancel a lease on certain naval oil reserve lands held by the Belridge Oil Co.

The suit was brought by the United States to cancel a lease made April 24, 1922, for lands in Naval Reserve No. 1, on the ground that the Secretary of the Interior, who executed it, was without authority to do so and that opportunity was not afforded for competitive bidding. The decision given by Judge Sheppard of the Federal District Court of Florida, who heard the case in California, held that the lease was a valid one and entered a decree dismissing the Government's petition.

Representative Burton

stated that he had found much interest among the European officials in regard to the coming conference. The development of international law is one of the subjects to be discussed.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with mere printing news, always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

Why People Don't Vote.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
M. R. FRANK R. KENT, like all writers who have written on the subject, confesses that he does not understand, and intimates that nobody understands why half of the voters do not vote.

None of these writers have ever asked us why we do not vote, but as one of the number and speaking for myself only, I volunteer the following explanation:

In 1916 I cast my first ballot for that colossal humbug, William Jennings Bryan, not because I fell for his "Cross of Gold" nonsense, but, being then, as now a single taxer, I considered him less of a menace than his opponent who was the avowed protagonist of special privilege. I continued this negative method of voting for the lesser of two evils, until the two evils became so nearly alike there was no lesser, so I had to quit voting.

One of the records of my life is the fact, of which I am proud, that I have never cast a ballot for a successful candidate for any office. The fellow gets tired of voting against things. He wants to vote for things once in a while.

The first chance I ever had to do so was in 1916 when I voted for Wallace and Lincoln on the Commonwealth Land Party ticket. I think if Mr. Kent divides his inquiries to those best qualified to answer why half do not vote—viz: to that half who do not vote—will find that the real reason is because they are too enlightened and intelligent to vote.

Telephone Victim Protests.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
OUR telephone service in the Musical Arts Building has been unspeakably rotten ever since the merger was effected and we were switched from the Lindele to the Delmar exchange. I have gone without service for four days at a time and no effort on my part could induce the company to repair my phone. On Saturday last I reported the phone out of order again. Forty-eight hours have passed and it's still out of order. I've been receiving messages for Delmar 739 the past week. Wonder who's getting mine. I was raised $2 a month on July 1. Can anything be done?

A "Bell-Ringer" Replies.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN ANSWER to remarks about the growing menace of the bell-ringer, The housewife is not so ignorant as you represent her to be. She has learned from the bell-ringer that the retail merchant is doing his house-to-house canvassing through the newspaper and this expense is added to the products she is buying from the retail store. For example, I sell the housewife a can of peas for 15 cents that she pays 23 cents for at the store. If these peas are not satisfactory we refund the money, or if a pair of silk hose is not as we claim it to be we replace same with another pair. We do not misrepresent our goods, we know there is a market of buyers who who would like to change the Constitution to suit their own conveniences, regardless of the inconvenience to their competitors. Thank God for the foresight of the founders of our Constitution. Hoping you get that old grouch off before you go home, then go out and boast your own products and don't knock the other fellow, as I will be down to see you soon.

The Courting Problem.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I READ with interest O. S.'s article on the high cost of courtship. The matter is a new problem, that has come with the auto and come to stay. To one who observes and observes critically—reflected, ponders, analyzes, it is all very interesting, providing abundant food for thought as to the ultimate outcome in its bearing on the future of the human race. Love is left out—eliminated, and love is the welding process without which we can never fall in with nature's plans, and in consequence, can never get the full measure of happiness which nature intended.

It is also very interesting, as we have remarked. Some young man, in his courtship, dragging, at other times pathetic. See the girls standing, waiting, watching for some young man, they know to come along with a car. At last he comes in sight. He stops. They approach, hang to the car, a brief period of conversation, and then the invitation to "get in." Then the ohs and uches and bursts of laughter as they clamber in, floundering about a bit, and eventually get settled by pounding down on each other's laps. There is some compensation in noting the eyes light up as the car moves on. They are happy. A ride. More rides later. Nothing but eating trips by and by. Will it end thus? Sure it will. They think it will; but the afterwards the regrets come. The regrets among the girls that it was the car and not love that caught

BIG BUSINESS ABOUT TO FLY.

Big Business apparently is ready to take to the skies.

The news teems with bewildering plans for commercial aviation on an unprecedented scale. The names of Morgan and Henry Ford lend magic to the reports, while in the roster appear such personages as Owen D. Young, John Hays Hammond Jr. and Herbert Satterlee.

How far forward the plans have gone is still conjectural, but the dramatic prophecy of Secretary of Commerce Hoover, after an interview with President Coolidge, warrants the rosiest construction. Mr. Hoover pictures "airways filled with ships carrying passengers and freight; landing fields in the centers of population; trails of light on the ground at night to guide the ships in the air; an entirely new element in transportation, competing with rail and water routes and the foundation laid for military supremacy in the air against all world rivals."

As for Ford, the decision has been made. He has bought out all the stockholders of the Stout Metal Airplane Co., together with the patents and manufacturing rights, and will operate the plant as a division of the Ford Motor Co., which it is predicted, will have from 75 to 100 planes in its own service within a year, and in a few years at most will have an air system rivaled only by the Army Air Service.

The Morgan syndicate, it seems, which is going to fly lighter-than-air craft, is proceeding more cautiously. It desires the Government's co-operation. No, it is not asking for a subsidy. It wants, first of all, to lease the Los Angeles for experimental flights while manned by naval officers. If the experiments are satisfactory it will organize a $50,000,000 company, to be known as the Air Ways Corporation, which will build vastly bigger ships than the Los Angeles and will link into a scheduled service the cities of Boston, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Chicago, St. Louis and Omaha. Later a Southern route will be established, with transatlantic service the ultimate goal.

In addition it will want air navigation laws which will define and secure its rights before it embarks on this adventurous investment.

The fact that the Morgan crowd is going in for dirigibles while Ford will manufacture airplanes gives color to another statement of Hoover's regarding the prospective war of financial interests for control of the air—the contestants being the champions of lighter-than-air craft and heavier-than-air craft.

This is a battle which may rage furiously at no distant time and may get deep enough into politics to disrupt parties and determine the results of presidential elections. This struggle, however, is in the future. Meantime it seems as if the natal day of practical commercial aviation in the United States is flushing the Eastern horizon.

EXILED FROM OLD MISSOURI.

Justice Skinner, who holds forth at Trenton, Mo., dealt out an old-time form of punishment to Charles Whorton, jolly bootieger. Justice Skinner gave Charles Whorton 40 days to leave old Missouri, and the aforesaid Whorton opines it won't take nearly that long for him to go. Whorton probably has his eye on greener pastures.

This brings up the general question of exile for political offenses. If all our Missouri bootleggers were exiled it would put a serious crimp in our 1930 census ambitions, unless exiling were made a general policy.

In that case we could exchange Missouri exiles for Kansas and Arkansas bootleggers, similarly exiled, thus keeping the population figures within one-half of one per cent of normal. The idea seems eminently fair.

A VIRTUOUS SHIFT OF POLICY.

The Baker-Enloe prison administration, it is reported on good authority, has decided to become virtuous. There's a reason—a reason, in fact, quite unconnected with virtue. The administration has decided to abandon the "cut, make and trim" system of disposing of the products of convict labor and to return to the old system whereby the State obtains a reasonable compensation for the labor of its prisoners.

Under the old system the products of the prison factories were sold in the open market for what they would bring. Judicious marketing under this plan heretofore has made possible the payment of the expenses of the prison from prison products. Under the "cut, make and trim" system introduced under the Baker-Enloe regime the favored contractors get the profit which should go to the State. They furnish the raw material, the State furnishes the labor, machinery and buildings at a low contract price, and the contractors sell in the open market, which the State could and ought to do to realize its just share in the operation.

But under the Baker-Enloe plan the prison has been running behind $25,000 a month in expenses, and that looks bad for the Baker administration. Hoping you get that old grouch off before you go home, then go out and boast your own products and don't knock the other fellow, as I will be down to see you soon.

They took Babe Ruth out of the game for a pinch hitter the other day. Oh, pathetic anticlimax! Not since the mighty Casey went to bat and struck out with the bases full has baseball witnessed such a fall. Babe Ruth, the sultan of swat, whose prodigious drives smashed fences or soared over them two years ago, is now batting .273 and pitchers no longer tremble when he steps to the plate. No more do opposing managers order their moundsmen to walk him, no more do the bleacher fans shade their eyes to see the hurtling sphere pass overhead. Babe Ruth has tasted the bitterest bitterness—to be pulled for a pinch hitter.

How has the mighty fallen? Last season it was a swollen head. This season it was a swollen stomach. Conciit and an unwise appetite brought Babe Ruth to this. Believing his position impregnable, he broke training rules, his girth increased, frantically he tried to reduce, and his efforts only hastened the collapse. It is said that Napoleon lost at Waterloo because of a too heavy dinner the night before. Babe Ruth lost at the Polo Grounds because of an extra forkful. So is it with Generals and home-run hitters.

We wish to point no moral. Our song is one of deep regret, not chiding. We liked to see Babe Ruth in the brave days of old. We hope he will come back and hit them out again. Yet, the chronicle of his passing seems at hand. One thing is certain: If Babe Ruth goes the way of all flesh, then some night Jack Dempsey will eat lobster and filet on the canvas before a new champion; Johnny Weismuller will eat watermelon and follow a new record holder to the finish line; Jim Barnes will tally too long over his pastry and slice into the rough. And we would like to pay for Dempsey's lobster!

MRS. CHAMP CLARK AND BOWLING GREEN.

There is pathos in Mrs. Champ Clark's assertion that Bowling Green, the home town of the Clarks, does not deserve the $25,000 monument to Champ Clark which the State plans to erect there in the courthouse square. She considers Bowling Green disloyal because the townspeople did not side entirely with Mr. Clark in his historic row with William Jennings Bryan and Woodrow Wilson. Those whom Champ Clark believed were his enemies, were her enemies, and she thinks they should have been Bowling Green's enemies, too.

Measured by this fine standard of loyalty, did ever a town deserve a monument to its favorite son? There are New Yorkers who thought Grant a butcher, and citizens of Springfield who considered Lincoln a mountebank. Fame may be controversial, but monuments are not. Political careers may be debatable, but an epitaph is final. Monuments and epitaphs stand above the bitterness of life. Thus, a statue to Clark in Bowling Green would pay tribute to qualities beyond argument: that she was a man worthy of honor for long public service. To these sentiments every citizen of Bowling Green might subscribe, without hypocrisy, such is the generous blessing of marble after death.

The statue in Bowling Green will be a tribute to a great American and Missourian. Mrs. Clark need have no fear of the curses that fall upon a prophet in his own country. The old scores lie in the grave with Champ Clark. His place in the history of the DWIGHT F. DAVIS.

In the Government service, as in private business, the filling of vacancies in the higher ranks by the promotion of capable subordinates is a policy calculated to improve morale and promote efficiency. The observation is suggested at this time by the revival of the report, already noted by the Post-Dispatch, that the President may elevate Dwight F. Davis of St. Louis to the post of Secretary of War upon the expected retirement of Secretary Weeks.

The appointment of Davis would be geographically and politically "sound." What is more important, it would be a deserved recognition of first-class service. During much of the time since he was made Assistant Secretary of War by President Harding, in March, 1923, Davis, by virtue of the illness of his superior, has been the virtual head of the War Department. He now has the title of Acting Secretary. By all accounts he has shown himself worthy of promotion. The bestowal upon him of the title of Secretary would permit the War Department to go along without the jar that usually accompanies a change at the top. It would be a good stroke of business both for the President and for the country, and would, we believe, meet with widespread approval.

A CYCICAL VIEW OF ARBITRATION.

Negotiations in the anthracite mine workers' difficulty with the operators have run into an ugly impasse. It is a plain case of one side openly impeaching the good faith of the other side.

John L. Lewis, head of the Mine Workers' Union, has told Samuel D. Warriner, a leading operator, in a letter, that the miners will not arbitrate. That bold position for a spokesman of either side of a labor controversy to take after arbitration has so many times proved valuable from every point of view, including that of the consumer, who is the victim of all strikes.

It is not the principle of arbitration to which Mr. Lewis objects. The principle has been used hitherto in coal mine disputes. Therein, says Mr. Lewis, lies the objection to the present proposal. "I referred, of course," he wrote in his letter to Warriner, "to the arbitration proceedings of some years ago when the final decision of the arbitrator was changed between twilight and dawn. You might, if you wish, accept the reference as a compliment from the mine workers to a skillful adversary. We really do not care to arbitrate."

Mr. Lewis cynically accuses the operators of being crooked and "compliments" them for being possessed with the skill of corrupting the arbitrators, whoever they may be. He does not trouble himself to outline specifically the persons, time and circumstances of any past corruption.

When that attitude is taken what can the future bring forth? Is there to be a trial of strength from which the public as a whole would suffer more than the adversaries? We know that sooner or later the miners will be back at work. Why cannot the same forces which will have brought them back be employed to induce them not to quit at all? The history of mine strikes in this country is long and varied. Is there nothing in the history of past disputes to help dissolve the present deadlock which threatens to lengthen into a costly and senseless waste of time, wealth and happiness? Are the miners and operators both content with the prospect that a strike will stimulate the coal business and increase prices sufficiently to reward both adversaries? The consumers about to be squeezed would like to know.

A DAVID HARUM SENATOR.

Some idea of the difficulties that must be surmounted in the Senate before the United States can enter the Permanent Court of International Justice, as advocated by Presidents Harding and Coolidge, may be gained from a recent statement by Senator Moses of New Hampshire. With his usual frankness the Senator told reporters that ever since a colleague had informed him of Europe's extreme eagerness to get the United States into the court he had been "boasting the price" of our entrance.

The Senator, in other words, wants to charge the present members of the court all that the traffic will bear. He would apply the principles of horse-trading to the consideration of the court issue, rather than the principles of international justice and equity. It is not a frame of mind conducive to the establishment of safeguards against war.

THE MIGHTY HAS FALLEN.

MRS. BRYAN DISAVOWS FLORIDA MEMORIAL

Says She Never Heard of 'God-Daughter' of Commoner Who Suggested Statue With Bible.

By the Associated Press
COCONUT GROVE, Fla., Aug. 11.—Mrs. William Jennings Bryan has never heard of Miss Dioness Evans, and has never lent her approval to Miss Evans' announced plans to establish a national memorial to the Commoner at Clewiston, Fla., the widow of the fundamentalist leader told the Associated Press last night.

Miss Evans, characterized as Bryan's "god-daughter," was quoted in New York dispatches as saying that the widow had approved the selection of the site on the southwest shore of Lake Okeechobee for the monument.

Mrs. Bryan, in her statement, said:

"The statement of Miss Dioness Evans that I approve of the selection which she had made for a Bryan memorial appears in this evening's Associated Press report. I am compelled to say that I do not know the young lady, never heard of her and have never lent my approval to anything which she has suggested."

"Tentative plans were made in Washington by prominent and lifelong friends of Mr. Bryan looking toward a suitable memorial in Washington."

Miss Evans' was quoted as saying that the site for the monument had been donated by one of Bryan's closest friends. She explained the choice by saying that Florida was the Commoner's adopted State.

"I feel that it is the place the memorial should be," Miss Evans said. "He was not primarily a politician, but a crusader and he believed that there is a future for industrial folk in Florida."

Miss Evans' idea of the memorial pictured a heroic statue of the fundamentalist leader holding a Bible, while children were grouped around the pedestal. Several thousand dollars in contributions to carry out the project had been received, she said.

CALIFORNIA U. DRAWS UP CODE FOR GIRL STUDENTS

Liquor, Cigarettes and Extremes in Dress and Conduct Are Forbidden Under Rules.

By the Associated Press.

BERKELEY, Cal., Aug. 12.—Women freshmen who enroll in the University of California this week will learn that the Women's Executive Committee has been active during the summer vacation.

In outlining a campaign to promote intellectual pursuits rather than frivolities, the committee declared today that it will not tolerate:

Coming home from dances after 1 o'clock.
Entertaining masculine friends after 10:30 p. m.
Hose rolled below the knee.
Too generous use of rouge and lipstick.

All extremes in dress and conduct.
Indulgences in cigarettes.
Drinking intoxicants.

Notice will be served on all women students that violations of the code will mean trials before the women's committee.

The real test is obvious. The others were nobodies. We have then, a gentleman who is one part General and thirty-one parts nobody; and yet in many ways he seems to be the General come to life again. He has the General's pride and manners and low of decency.

At first glance this seems a puzzle, but the solution is simple.

The General, being the one ancestor the family pride cares to remember, has been talked about and presented to children as a model for many generations. The general is like the General because the General was used as a pattern in shaping him.

The General's pride that he seems to be herit is not an inheritance. It is a home-grown pride based on the fact of the General's. The man says to himself: "I am descended from a General; that's who I am." Therefore he carries his head high and looks the world in the face. But if the was no blood connection, and the general merely thought there was, his pride would be no less.

Which brings us at last to the point: A man thinketh in his heart, so is he. The well-born have a tremendous advantage merely because they have something to live up to. And parents render a genuine service when they forget the nobodies on the family tree and preserve the few somebody to inspire the kids. An ancestor is worth while if he can stiffen the backbone of a modern who might not be worth a whiff without family pride to keep him down and set him a mark.

MORE IMPORTANT THAN SWIMMING LESSONS.

From the Baltimore Evening Sun.
THE POSSIBILITY of the members of the Police Department becoming expert the rules of evidence and the operations of the criminal law is remote. The effort, however, to give them a general understanding of court procedure and the requirements of the law in the matter of testimony is entirely praiseworthy.

The State, in the prosecution of criminal must depend very largely upon its office of the law when it comes before the court. The outcome hinges upon the thoroughness with which they have collected evidence and given acceptable testimony. It is obvious therefore, that they should know what constitutes reliable testimony.

State's Attorney Herbert R. O'Connor volunteered to give of his time and efforts to this end. If he is successful in educating only a few of the many to whom he will lecture, so much will be gained for the efficiency of the law and the protection of the community.

The "Giheen Club," an organization of West End girls who have been active for several years in the work for the babies, will conduct a carnival at 5793 Westminster Place next Wednesday evening, Aug. 19, for the benefit of the Post-Dispatch Ice Fund for Babies' Milk Fund. Last year the club earned $200 with their carnival and in other years they have received substantial sums for the babies' fund.

Miss Pauline Frank, 5793 Westminster Place, is directing the activities of the club again this year. Members of the "Giheens" include: Misses Lucille Lesser, Edith Gogel, Catherine Ebert, Blanch Marcus, Rosenthal and Julia Jackes.

Yesterday's contributions to the Ice Fund amounted to only $6. The fund now totals $2541.98, nearly $1800 short of the cost of ice distribution.

A $5 check came from Nedra Petway, who wrote that the money was the proceeds of a show given at 5245A Gilmore avenue by the members of the Fifty-Two hundred block of Gilmore avenue.

COMMERCE CHAMBER BEING FORMED IN ST. LOUIS COUNTY

A St. Louis County Chamber of Commerce is being formed to have the usual activities indicated by its name, but primarily to induce real estate investors to put their money in county property instead of in Florida land.

County real estate men are active in the organization. Joseph Durst, a subdivision operator, having presided at the organization meeting at the Racquet Club a week ago. Fourteen realty dealers attended. The group is co-operating with M. B. Greensfelder of Clayton, retired property owner, who for some time has sought to organize a county Chamber of Commerce.

The realty men declare that a considerable amount of money that should be invested in county property, as a worthy speculation, is being put into Florida land. An "educational campaign," with advertising, is contemplated to overcome this.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Flynn of 421 Westgate avenue, City, Miss Alberta Allen and Miss Alma Robb, who departed early in July for a Western tour, have extended their visit in California and prolonged their tour until September, when they will return by the Canadian route.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Woodward are in New York at the Hotel Chatham. Other St. Louisans registered at the Hotel Chatham are William D. Orthwein, Jr., Clarence Maloy, Birch O. Mahaffey and L. A. Miller.

Misses Dorothy and Alice Wilkinson entertained with a bridge party today at the residence of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Wilkinson, 5540 Pershing avenue. Miss Frances Wrapp was the guest of honor.

OMPANY

BODY OF TEACHER, KILLED BY YOUTH IN AUTO, FOUND

Discovered Near Lamonte, Mo., It Is Identified as
That of Aden R. Clawson of New York.

By the Associated Press.
LA MONT, Mo., Aug. 12.—Identification of the body of Aden R. Clawson of Lodi, N. Y., to whose murder Everett Adams has confessed at Garden City, Kan., was made today by Coroner W. G. Jones of Sedalia, shortly after Clawson's body was found on a lonely by-road, four miles west of La Monte.

The identity was established through travelers' checks and letters found in the man's clothing. The checks were made out on blanks of the Bankers' Trust Co. of New York, and totaled $320.

The body was found by George Meyer, a farmer, in a clump of weeds.

The road, near where the body was found, crosses highway No. 12, a busy State road from Kansas City to St. Louis, now being hard-surfaced.

Adams, driving a blood-stained motor car, was arrested at Garden City several days ago and held for investigation. After examination by county authorities, he confessed that he shot and killed Clawson after the latter had offered him a ride near Jefferson City.

Slayer Son of Member of Wilmington (O.) Police Department.

By the Associated Press.
GARDEN CITY, Kan., Aug. 12.—Everett Adams, son of Henry Adams of the police department of Wilmington, O., is the identity of "Fred Jordan," who confessed here to the murder of Eden R. Clawson of Lodi, N. Y. Officials admitted the identity of the youth today when the father of the boy failed to arrive as expected. The youth, officials said, had been promised concealment of identity until his father could be consulted.

Clawson started on a motor tour of the West after the close of the Cedarhurst school for the summer vacation, say advices from Geneva, N. Y., where he visited his mother and sister before starting West. A postcard received by a friend in Lodi, N. Y., dated from Geraldine, Mo., miles east of St. Louis, the last heard from him. His mother, becoming worried, had asked police chiefs in Missouri and Kansas to be on the lookout for him.

The youth, who yesterday confessed murdering Clawson, was arrested in Garden City Aug. 5, when officers there became suspicious of the blood-stained car he was driving. The car was identified by its license plates but up until yesterday the boy denied any knowledge of Clawson and told police he had bought the car at Terre Haute, Ind. Signs On Confession.

Last yesterday, however, he broke down and signed a confession, telling how, as he walked along the road west of Jefferson City, Clawson picked him up, remarked that the boy looked like "a well dressed bum." With only 50 cents in pocket, the confession said, "Jordan" decided to hold up his host. He drew a revolver, he said, and when Clawson lunged at him, fired, he could not remember how many times.

The body fell over a fender, the confession said, and loading it back into the car, he turned off the main highway "somewhere west of Cedarburg, Mo." drove along this road and dumped the body off into a ditch, near a culvert.

Turning the car around, the confession related, the boy returned to the main highway and continued West. Pleasant Hill, Mo., he said, was the town he reached having passed after leaving California, Mo.

Blood on Machine.

"There I noticed blood on the car," he said. "I tried to clean it off with a handkerchief. Anyone could have seen it. Then I tried to go faster and faster to get away from it. It has got on my nerves."

The journey of the death car ended with his arrest at Garden City.

DRY GOODS BUYING INFLUX ATTRIBUTED TO AMPLE STOCKS

Inquiry Also Shows Out-of-Town Merchants AreAppealed To by Prices and Delivery Here.

A merchant from Oklahoma, representative of a chain of dry goods stores in Oklahoma and Kansas, who brought a half dozen buyers to St. Louis for the fall buying season, announced today in a Washington Avenue wholesale house, that he had completed his work.

"I don't have to go to the Calcas or New York markets," he said. "Why should I? Your stocks meet our needs in variety and quantity. We can get here on the floor, and we can get prompt and satisfactory deliveries."

Many Newcomers to Market.

These views were endorsed by officials of other dry goods houses, as were optimistic reports. "We are away ahead of orders of last year," said S. G. Wilson, general manager of the Carleton Dry Goods Co.

"More merchants are in the market in the last week and than ever before," asserted J. H. Jones, vice president and sales manager of Ely, Walker Dry Goods Co.

"They are buying more liberally than in recent seasons.

To us, the surprising factor is the number of buyers who are doing their buying here."

As is shown, the influx of buyers to St. Louis has been augmented, not only by the seasonal fall market openings, but by the outside attractions of the American Retailers Association convention—which closed its fifth semiannual gathering in St. Louis last week—the Fashion Show, at the Garden Theatre, and the Municipal Opera.

Commenting on the St. Louis dry goods trade, as reflected at present, the Drygoodsman, St. Louis trade publication, says:

"St. Louis Has the Goods."

In a canvass of the Washington avenue dry goods houses, in inquiry as to the current buying, the inquirer finds a partial explanation as to the record influx of buyers now in St. Louis.

"St. Louis has the goods"—a one-slogan—and St. Louis can deliver the goods.

Further inquiry discloses that times are good in St. Louis trade territory, except in certain sections, chiefly points in Southeastern Texas, and certain parts of central Texas. There the drouth has seriously hurt the crops. In the rest of Texas, in Oklahoma, Kansas, Iowa, Nebraska, in Illinois and Indiana to the east and Kentucky and Tennessee to the south—in general the immediate sections tributary to St. Louis' distribution of goods—there are favorable conditions.

The outlook for active and continued growth of distribution of dry goods in the territory, which looks to St. Louis as its chief source of supply, never was brighter than at this time." This assertion was made by Aaron S. Rauh, vice president of Rice-Stix Dry Goods Co., which this year will do a volume of business conservatively estimated in excess of $50,000,000.

The combination of splendid crops at most favorable prices, in practically all sections, with exception of a portion of Texas, together with minimum unemployment, and, most important of all, lots of merchandise in practically all lines—a combination of sound fundamentals such as these—together with high wages, produces the prosperity." Anticipation of reduction in Federal taxes also is an important figure in forecasting the prosperity of the future, he pointed out.

"Since the artificial boom of 1919-20," he continued, "there has been an absence of speculation in merchandise. Merchants are profiting by the experience of that time and are today conducting their business on a more conservative basis, leaving to the manufacturer and large distributors the carrying of ample stocks to supply their needs.

The progress of business in 1925 is based on solid foundation and we are moving ahead slowly, cautiously, but surely to a sound prosperity.

"St. Louis today, as it has for years, enjoys the reputation of being the greatest dry goods market in this country. St. Louis wholesalers, combining with their distribution of dry goods of description, produce their own marks and leaders in their field, and by reason of the great volume of business that is done in St. Louis, they are enabled to distribute their merchandise on an unusually close margin."

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

RAIL SHARES BOUGHT AND OILS SOLD

Wide and Irregular Price Movements Mark General Market—General Rail-way Signal Is Erratic.

By Llosed Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted financial review today says:

"Wide and irregular price movements, reflecting the cross currents of opinion in speculative quarters, characterized today's somewhat active market in the stock market."

Erratic gyrations of General Rail-way Signal formed an example of the unseemliness of the market, according to a record high, the stock market profit taking and fall preceding.

After a sharp rise of nearly 50 points before support became evident. Business was a little more active in the bond department.

Chicago stocks and Philadelphia & Ohio convertibles fared well with a spurt of more than 40 points to a new high record in one share. Other rail issues were fairly good demand while foreign securities acted weakly.

Government issues were inclined to stay steady. Call money became more plentiful and rates dropped back to 4 per cent after renewals had been arranged at 4 per cent.

Irregularity Again Features.

Mixed movements continued to provide the feature in speculative markets except for a few prominent high-priced industrials and representative stocks of favored railroads.

The general line was lacking in support. Oil stocks and many of the motor vehicle manufacturers' shares were under heavy selling pressure.

In a measure, however, the strength of such stocks as General Electric, American Can, Allis-Chalmers and the like is more reassuring than the was the sensational advance in winter and spring of some speculative issues. It seems apparent that investment stocks are being supported not so much by artificial speculative interest as by genuine investment purchases in anticipation of increased distributions for stockholders.

Support for Rail Shares.

"As a group the railroad shares presented the strongest position. Chesapeake & Ohio pushed toward another new high for the year. Small advances were general throughout the list of roads which had shown some gains or losses expected to form parts of mergers. Selling was directed against oil stocks, however, and many of the motor vehicles fell back again.

Foreign Exchanges Steady.

"Activity in the foreign exchange market was confined largely to forward business. In which the volume were of the opinion that commercial interests in Europe were making preparations for large purchases of raw materials in the country in the next few months.

Fluctuations in rates were com-life were recovered, but pesetas remained under pressure. Sterling was off again.

Scandinavian currencies sagged.

commanded attention, with continued strength.

Commodity Prices Rally.

"Commodity markets were more active and prices recovered, indicating that selling occasioned by the recent Government crop reports had been absorbed. Wheat values were strengthened by an unexpected advance in Liverpool and a strong rally in Whinnipeg. Unfavorable crop weather in England was advanced as the reason for the rally, which resulted in gains more than 4 cents a bushel in September deliveries, which closed at the top for the day. Corn slipped back, while oats and rye were higher. Selling pressure was lifted in the cotton market in the afternoon and prices rallied about 1 cent a bale.

SPEEDER FLEES AFTER STRIKING TWO PERSONS

Car That Critically Injured Mother and Son Later Found Abandoned.

Injured.

Mrs. Frieda Diepenbrock, 28 years old, of 3011 North Twentieth street; fractures of skull and both jaws, concussion of the brain and internal injuries.

William D. Diepenbrock Jr., 3, her son; fractures of skull and right arm, probable fractures of ribs and internal injuries.

Charles Purdy, 40, of 823 Hickory street; fractured left leg.

Miss Rose Daniel, 17, of 1918 North Grand boulevard; internal injuries.

Mrs. Anthony Cernman, 52, of 1415 Salsbury street; fractured skull and ribs and internal injuries.

Miss Della M. Dillon, 60, of 3205 North Twenty-second street; incisions and severe shock.

William O'Connell, 47, of 4019 Garfield avenue; lacerated scalp, internal injuries.

Mrs. William Lanfercheck, 19, of 1917 East De Soto street; shock.

Mrs. Marie Vaughn, 39, of 1116A Ferry street; shock.

Miss Louise Ross, 13, of 4119 West Florissant avenue; shock.

Frank Pudlowski, 70, of 5228 Grace street; fractured skull.

James McGuire, 6, of 1227 Hickory street; fractured skull and lacerations of the scalp.

Search is being made today for the driver of a speeding automobile who yesterday afternoon ran down and critically injured a woman and her 3-year-old son, fled from the scene of the accident and later abandoned his machine.

The victims were Mrs. Frieda Diepenbrock, 28 years old, of 3011 North Eleventh street, and 3-year-old William P. Diepenbrock Jr.

The mother had been to a store across Twentieth street from their home and as she started back across the street William toddled out into the thoroughfare to meet her. As he neared his mother a Studebaker roadster traveling, according to eyewitnesses, at about 40 miles an hour, swept north. The front fender struck the boy and tossed him into the curb. The rear of the machine sideswiped the mother and knocked her down.

Miss Diepenbrock's condition is critical. She suffered fractures of both paws, a fractured skull, concussion of the brain, and internal injuries. Her son suffered a fractured skull and right arm, probable fractured ribs and internal injuries.

Later a Studebaker roadster was found abandoned at Fourteenth and Palms streets. Its license plates correspond to a part of the license number of the speeding car as observed by witnesses. The police have traced the ownership of the car to a man whose insurance papers were found in the abandoned machine, but they have not yet been able to find him.

Drivers in Two Other Accidents

Flee After Injuring Persons.

In two other accidents yesterday the drivers fled after knocking down the victims and inflicting serious injuries. Most of the accidents reported yesterday were due to the heavy rainstorm which made streets slippery and caused frequent skidding.

A truck driver drove away at 5:10 p. m. after knocking down Charles Purdy, 40, of 823 Hickory street, as he crossed Broadway at Poplar street. Purdy suffered a fractured left leg.

Miss Rose Daniel, 17, of 1918 North Grand boulevard, suffered internal injuries when knocked down by an automobile as it pulled out of a Locust street filling station between Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets at noon. The driver of the car, which bears a Pennsylvania license, took her to a nearby drug store and drove away, while she was being treated. She furnished his description to the police.

Mrs. Anthony Cernman, 52, of 1415 Salsbury street, suffered fractures of the skull and ribs in an auto crash at Salsbury street and North Florissant avenue at 7:30 p. m. She was a passenger in an automobile driven by Lincoln King of 1409 Salsbury street, which struck a machine driven by George Tesson, a city fireman, at 4131 Maffitt avenue.

WOMAN, 60, Struck by Auto.

Running for a street car at Grand boulevard and Olive street at 7:30 p. m., Miss Della M. Dillon, 60, of 3205 North Twenty-second street, was struck by an automobile driven by Anthony Grote of 4479 Ashland avenue, which skidded forward after the accident. She suffered lacerations and severe shock.

William O'Connell, 47, of 4019 Garfield avenue, was knocked down at Tower Grove and Shaw avenues at 5:20 p. m. by an automobile driven by Gilbert Rekate of 5512 Vernon avenue. He suffered a fractured scalp and internal injuries.

A southbound bus of the People's Motor Bus Co. skidded in front of 3812 North Grand at 10:25 p. m., struck a northbound street car and careened off into a lamp post which it wrecked. Three women passengers who suffered shock were sent to their homes. They gave their names as Mrs. William Lanfercheck, 19, of 1917 East De Soto street; Mrs. Marie Vaughn, 39, of 1116A Ferry street and Miss Louise Ross, 18, of 4119 West Florissant avenue.

MEDITATIONS OF A MARRIED WOMAN

By HELEN ROWLAND

WHAT EVERY WIFE KNOWS.

EVERY married woman knows that the "sacredness of the home" consists largely in the fact that the big armchair and the best reading lamp are "sacred" to the man of the house.

That the broadest bath towel, the pet back brush and the shaving cabinet are "sacred" to Father.

That the liver, the second-joint and the browned skin on the breast of the fowl are "sacred" to DAD.

That the desk in the den and the undisturbed morning newspaper are sacred to Him.

That the cream off the quart and the melon on the ice are his by divine right.

That the front door key and the garage lock are sacred to his use—and the ladder and the lawn-mower sacred possessions never to be "fooled with."

That Sunday is twice sacred to him—and the sporting page must be preserved underfiled until he peruses it.

Sunday morning is sacred to his beauty sleep, the Sunday dinner to his fluctuating appetite and Sunday evening to his nap, his whims, or his amusement.

The car tools are sacred to his use and the driver's seat to his royal occupancy.

The family tub is sacred to his matutinal splash and the vestibule light to his nocturnal home-coming.

The furnace is sacred to his tinkering and the shovel his exclusive property. The hammer and the screwdriver positively radiate boy privilege.

The camping equipment in the garage and the fishing poles upon its beams burn with righteous fire; and any wife expects to be struck dead if she irreverently tampers with his bait box, looking for a screw or something.

Eight A. M. is sacred to his breakfast, six-thirty P. M. to his dinner, and seven-thirty to the rites and ceremony that accompany his after-dinner cigar.

Woman has always been credited with "preserving the sanctity of the home;" but it is really man who manages to surround almost everything in it, from the shoe-horn and the hot water to the car and the radio, with the glamour of sacred possession and royal privilege.

Yea, verily, all the sanctity of the home is MAN'S!

Child Management

By DR. D. A. THOM.

Issued to the Post-Dispatch by the Children's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor.

No. 8—THE "FINICKY" APPETITE.

DALNTY serving of food goes a long way in arousing appetite. A small table and china "all his own" or being allowed to sit in mother's place at the table may have a great appeal. Let the child know that while he learns to feed himself in a quiet, efficient manner, he may then come to the table with the "grown-ups." This may give him incentive to strive for perfection. Occasionally consult the child's preference about his food, but never let him feel he is free to dictate as to what he will and will not eat. Teach him that certain foods are required if he is to grow big and strong and rugged like the "Daddy" he adores. Do not insist on pushing him; lead him once in a while. Little harm will result from mixing several foods and then, there are times when food is repulsive to children for no apparent reasons. There are other occasions when their mood is such that they enjoy arousing anxiety, worry and solicitude in the parent. You will find when this is the case and the child says he does not want any lunch that it is wise to reply that it is quite all right and if he is not hungry he may run out to play. You have thus removed every resistance which he hoped to battle against and if this is just an emotional attitude, it is unlikely that he will take an interest in missing a meal in the future.

Remember that children are quick to copy and if, for instance, grandma is on a limited diet and cannot eat this or that, or if father frankly emphasizes his likes and dislikes, the child is apt to become finicky and nonconformist in his eating.

The child who early learns to eat with a good appetite whatever is set before him will be saved much discomfort and embarrassment in later life.

In course, the child should have plain, nourishing, easily digested food that is well cooked and served in small quantities. Regularity in serving meals is of great importance, not only for physiological reasons, such as keeping the intake of food evenly regulated in order that the digestive apparatus may work smoothly, but for other reasons as well. Obviously if a child learns that food is available at any hour of the day he will not be greatly concerned in eating at any definite time. It should be understood that children should strictly adhere to the rule that the younger does not eat at the altered hour he gets nothing until the following meal. Care must be taken, however, that he is not fed between meals by other members of the family or supplied with pennies with which he can buy sweets to appease his hunger during the interval. The child should not be allowed to sit down during the meal, nor should he be given sufficient time to play and dabble with his food. The ordinary meal for a child should not require over 30 minutes at the most. If by that time he has not finished remove the food without any comment.

"But I wasn't much good to you."

"Why, just to know you were there, with me, in the room, made me happy."

"Do I make a good background?" she asked, trying to sound amused.

LOVE

CHAPTER 44.

SHE put Chickover out of her thoughts and went and bought a lipstick. The Fanshawes were giving a dance that night, and had invited them, and Christopher insisted on going. Useless for her to say she couldn't dance; he said she wouldn't be able to help herself with him. It appeared that he loved dancing, and only hadn't danced much before his marriage because, as he explained, he couldn't stick the fool-girls one met at dances. After all, it wasn't possible to dance in absolutely stony silence, and what to say to these girls positively? What if one could hide love to them, now? Catherine winced—but she could even do that, because then one would have got tangled up and have to marry them. Marry them! Good God.

Now came this invitation, and he jumped at it, and all she could do was to make the best of herself. So, as a first step, she went out and bought a lipstick; and such had been the innocence of her life in these matters that she blushed when she asked for one. But she wasn't pleased with the effect and, anxiously examining herself before Christopher came in to dinner, was inclined to think it only made her look less good.

"Wouldn't I be tired," said Catherine, making an effort to laugh; and instead of laughing, crying.

Crying. The worst thing possible for her eyes. She would be a real, unmistakable hag in the morning.

"Why, what is it, my precious little thing?" exclaimed Christopher, feeling his face suddenly wet, and greatly surprised, and distressed.

"It's nothing—I'm just tired," she said, hurriedly wiping her eyes and determined no more tears should screen themselves out.

Catherine didn't think how bored you must be," he said, anxiously kissing and hugging her.

"I saw you talking to Fanshawe and thought you looked quite happy."

"Oh, yes—I was."

"Catherine—little thing—"

He kissed her again and again, she kissed him back and managed to laugh.

"Darling Chris," she said, nestling close. "I don't believe I'm any good at dances."

"You will be when I've taught you. You'll dance like a little angel. We'll get gramophone tomorrow."

"Oh—no—don't get a gramophone. Please, Chris darling. I can't learn to dance. I don't want to."

"I'm sure I never could. You must go to dances without me."

"Without you! I like that. As though I'd ever go to anything, or budge an inch, without you."

At this time they had been married five weeks.

There came another letter from Virginia, not quite so warm, because nobody can keep at the same temperature uninterruptedly for weeks, but still continued to invite.

"We have you and Mr. Monkton are soon coming here, dearest mother," she wrote in her round childish handwriting. "I have the pleasure of telling you that your son is a very good boy, and mother says that this is the one to be most careful in, so that if you were to come now we could have some nice quiet talks. Stephen is visiting in the parish, but I think if he were here he would ask me to give you his love."

Well, this was a miracle. She not only looked 10, 15 years younger, but she looked so very feminine. A little adventurous, perhaps, the last vestiges of the quiet country lady that still had survived the rubbings-off of Christopher all gone, but, how—well, how pretty.

The only thing left to do was to go at once and buy a hat worthy of so distinguished a complexion. She went straight to Bond street, and on the short walk discovered that people looked at her, saw her instead of her being, as she had lately been, so completely uninteresting that it made her practically invisible.

Both the hat and the treatment were expensive—the treatment more so, because it didn't last, and the hat at least for a little while did. Impossible to have the treatment more often than very occasionally, as it cost so much, and she accordingly bought a box containing everything belonging to it except the young woman's fingernails and tips and tried to give it to herself at home.

The results were rather unfortunate. She didn't look like anybody in the very least good. Mrs. Mitcham was secretly much worried. But she persisted, hoping by practice to become clever at it; and it was while she was in the middle of her daily struggles one morning that Virginia's second letter arrived.

What was to be done about Chickover? How could she go there with Christopher? Though he swore he would never go near the accursed spot again, she knew he would if she asked him to. But how painful, how impossible it would be. Stephen was holding out oboe branches, for of course Virginia would never have admitted them without his approval; but Stephen's olive branches were unpleasant things, she thought, remembrance him as she had seen him last, on the day of his horrible accusations. To have met him last like that and then find him on the doorstep being the pleasant host to Christopher! And Virginia, kept ignorant of everything except the fact of the marriage, bravely trying to do her duty all round, and Mrs. Colquhoun profoundly hostile and disapproving—why should her beloved Chris be exposed to such odds?

Keeping the Hair Attractive

By LUCREZIA BORI, The Famous Spanish Prime Dona

I AM very insistent in my beauty advice on the subject of your hair. The reason for this is that I know for a fact that every woman who possesses good health can have hair that is bright and glossy, and a source of pleasure to herself and to her friends.

Of course the woman who is ill or who does not take good care of herself and her hair cannot expect it to show the beauty that really well-cared-for hair can possess.

You must sleep your allotted time, eight or nine hours, every night. You must eat simple, well proportioned meals, and you must keep your body and your scalp scrupulously clean, so both can breathe freely.

She sat staring at herself in the glass, thinking. When the letter arrived she was at her dressing table, going through the now long and difficult process of doing her hair. Mrs. Mitcham had brought the post out this morning, and Catherine had tiptoed across the room, and laid it on the table and stolen out quickly, neither looking to the right hand nor the left, for by this time experience had taught her that if she did look what she saw was likely to be upsetting.

Catherine paused in what she was doing to open the letter, and then sat idly twisting it round her finger. She had been told of a woman in Sackville street by Kitty Wanhouse, who "did" faces, and had gone at once and had hers done, and had been enchanted by the result. No more elementary lipsticks and powder for her. In this elegant retreat, at the back of the building away from all noise, soothed to the nerves merely to go into, she had lain back in a deep, delicious chair, and an exquisite young woman, whose own face was a convincing proof of the excellence of the treatment, did things with creams and oils and soft fingertips; and when at the end of the session, it was so soothing that Catherine went to sleep—a handglass was given her and she was told to look, she couldn't help an exclamation of pleasure.

Well, this was a miracle. She not only looked 10, 15 years younger, but she looked so very feminine.

A little adventurous, perhaps, the last vestiges of the quiet country lady that still had survived the rubbings-off of Christopher all gone, but, how—well, how pretty.

If you are guilty of any of the following acts you should not expect satisfaction from your refrigerator.

Do not keep your refrigerator in the sun. Give it a chance—the heat which melts the ice should come from the roots out. The pull on your hair is good for it and while your brush removes the dust the brushing movement invigorates your scalp.

Wash your brush directly afterward, and have it clean and fresh for the next brushing. This is most important, for a dusty brush will never clean your hair thoroughly.

Now, when your hair shows need of a shampoo, which it should not do oftener than two weeks if it is healthy, proceed as follows: If you can go three or even four weeks between shampoos, so much the better. You will need the following ingredients:

Pure olive oil 1 teaspoonful.

FASHION FADS AND FANCIES

By Mildred Ash

THE printed page is no surer influence upon public opinion than is the printed frock upon fashion's modes. Following the summer's vogue for prints, the leading fabric of the advance fall season is printed velvet. This is being shown in 54-inch width, in bordered effects.

"The once over" is sure to be accorded to the summer girl who wears a cretonne coat and carries a square-shaped sunshade of the same gayly flowered material. The latest rage is for cretonne with a background, for then the bright flowers stand out all the more vividly.

Burgundy will sparkle—not but in the old-time way—this coming fall. Its sparkle will be confined to the lustrous sheen of dress and coat fabrics that will favor Burgundy shades instead of the pansy purple that is now being done—overdone.

Girlish simplicity is indisputably charming. And nothing could be more girlishly simple than plain white linen frocks, trimmed in hand drawwork. These, in one-piece and jumper models, are being affected by the most fashionable subdebs, who recognize the fresh appeal of a crisply laundered white frock.

A Roman holiday could have been no more festive than the Roman striped silk bathing suits that are seen upon many of the most stylish beaches this summer. Work over bright purple, green, red or yellow wool jersey tight-surf costume is loud enough to almost be heard above the roar of the ocean. A draped turban of rubberized silk matches this gay little suit.

How to Carve.

TO CARVE a forequarter of lamb, which is the prime joint, insert the fork near the knuckle and while lifting with the fork make a circular cut under the knuckle so as to divide the shoulder from the scrof, while cutting the bread and ribs. Next cut to leave a half inch of meat on the ribs. Sprinkle half a lemon or Seville orange with salt or pepper and squeeze the juice under the shoulder; also put a slice of butter there; then reunite the parts until the butter is melted. Then place shoulder on a separate dish. Separate the neck from the ribs and help the breast or neck as the diners choose.

It will expedite the carving if the cook removes the shoulder from the ribs and adds the seasoned citrus juice (butter is often omitted), then replaces the shoulder before sending it to the table.

Approved by Mrs. Timmy.

No the Summer, or the Fall, or the time when the moon is sending her silvery beams to this old earth, and the stars are twinkling and the world made for lovers—if then your heart doesn't skip a beat when in the presence of some fair charmer, then you are in, Oh, said my! Take my advice and consult a "specialist" immediately if at once, before it is too late to partake of the glory of mid-spring.

—POPINI.

And don't despair. Be sure, though, that you consult the right one. I'd suggest that you go to the one who most fills your thoughts. She'll diagnose your case and prescribe a course of treatment; and be sure you fill it to the letter. You'll recover, for no case is really hopeless, particularly where Love guides the "specialist" in her prescription.
